Myth of the Month

“I can easily book the same trip on my own without using a travel agent.”

Although travel agents have access to all of the same outlets you would use when looking to book travel, they also have access to exclusive pricing and package deals that are most times not available to the public. I also have more leverage in helping out in situations such as hotels claiming to be booked, when in fact they may still have rooms available that are on hold for travel agents reservations. So when everyone else is telling you No, I can help turn that into a Yes.
